 pence (pen(t)s): a penny; what a person was paid for a day's work

One day a Pharisee named Simon invited Jesus to his house for a meal. Not many Pharisees wanted the Lord in their homes. They did not like the way He told them the truth about themselves. They said He was too friendly with sinners.

Most Pharisees thought they were more holy than anyone else. They thought that touching a sinner or even getting close to one made them unclean. When they saw how Jesus loved sinners, how He talked and ate with them, they said He could not be a very good man.

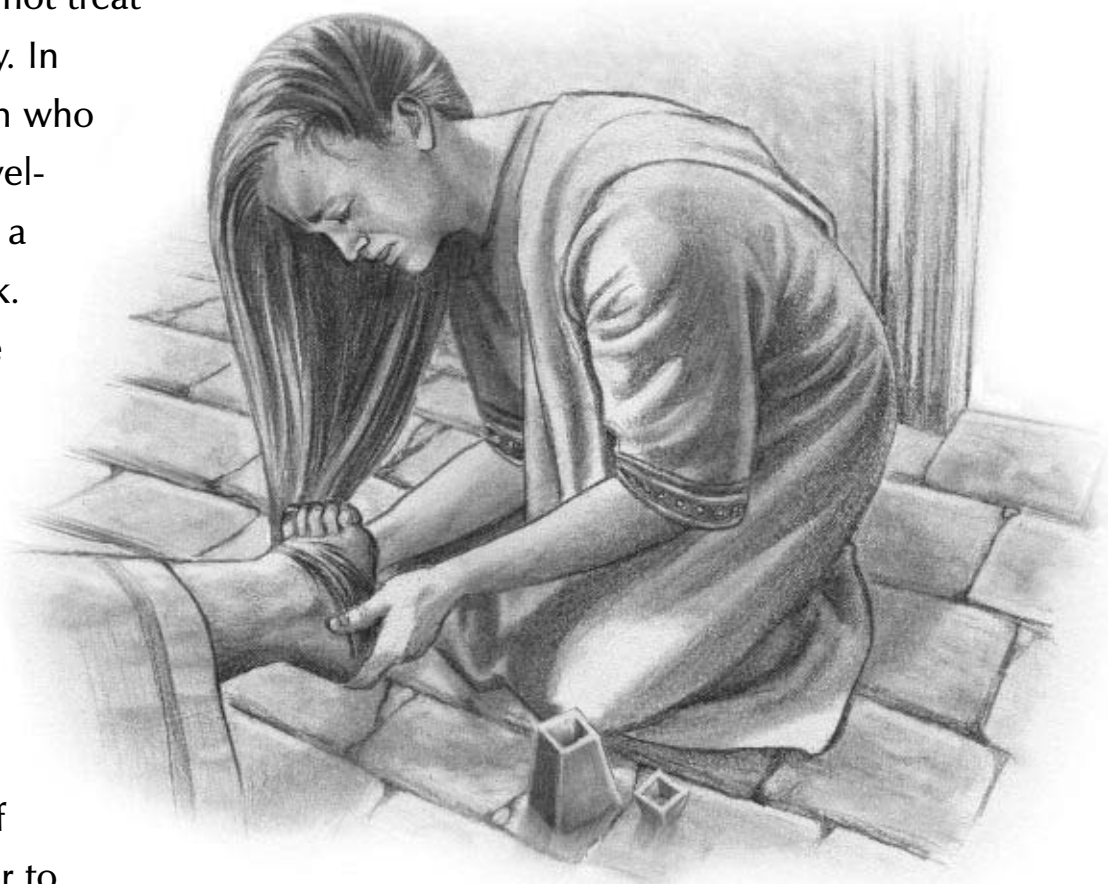

Some people said Jesus was a prophet who had come from God. The Pharisees said He was a sinner. Perhaps Simon invited Jesus to his house so he could decide for himself whether the Lord was a prophet or a sinner.

It is plain that Simon did not love Jesus, for he did not treat Him very politely. In those days a man who invited a guest welcomed him with a kiss on the cheek. He anointed the guest with sweet-smelling oil. Then he would have a servant bring water and wash the guest's hot, dusty feet. If he were too poor to have a servant, he would at least bring water so the guest could wash his own feet. Simon did none of these things for Jesus when He arrived at his house.

In that city lived a sinful woman. She heard about Jesus. His holy life and kindness to everyone made her very sorry for her sinful life. She believed Jesus could forgive her.

When she heard that Jesus was visiting Simon, she came with a box of very expensive perfume. She stood behind Him at His feet. As she wept, her tears fell on His dusty feet. She wiped them away with her long hair. Then she kissed His feet and poured the expensive perfume on them.

Simon watched all this. He watched to see what Jesus would do. But the Master did not draw away from the touch of the sinful woman. He did not tell her to go away. And the Pharisee said to himself, If this man were a prophet, He would know how wicked this woman is. He would not let her touch Him.

Jesus knew what Simon was thinking. He said, "I have something to say to you, Simon."

"Master, go ahead and say it," replied Simon.

Jesus said, "Once there were two people who owed money to a man. One owed him five hundred pence. The other owed him fifty pence. Neither of the two had any money. They could not pay what they owed.

"When the man found out they had no money, he simply forgave the debts. He told them they didn't have to pay what they owed him.

"Tell me, Simon, which of those two men do you think loved the man the most?"

Simon answered, "I suppose the man who owed five hundred pence loved him more than the man who owed him only fifty pence."

"You are right," said Jesus. Then He went on, "Simon, when I came to your house, you did not give Me water to wash My feet. This woman has washed My feet with her tears. You did not welcome Me with a kiss. This woman has kissed My feet over and over. You did not anoint My head with oil. But this woman has anointed My feet with perfume.

"This woman has shown a great love for Me because she is forgiven of many sins." Then Jesus said to the woman, "Your sins are forgiven. Your faith has saved you. Go in peace."

*Her sins, which are many, are forgiven;
for she loved much.*

Luke 7: 47
